Think on it: finally, though only after David Coon resorted to the Right To Information Act, we see revealed the backroom forestry deal struck between our government and the Irvings, a deal which will last for an entire generation, creating wealth for a private company at the expense of both New Brunswickers and our forests. The Irvings must be happy campers on their newly gained chunk of public forest. This should be a scandal, but it is one that generations of New Brunswickers have come to accept as business as usual. Will we never learn?
